

Summer 2024 Class

Environmental Psychology

July 22 -August 14, 2024

(But some flexibility in dates if you want to start early since it is online. Please contact Dr. Duffy at seduffy@scarletmail.rutgers.edu to discuss options!)

Prof. Sean Duffy

A central theme in Environmental Psychology is that we are significantly shaped by the environments – both natural and built – in which we contextualize our lives. But another theme involves how choices we make as consumers affects the planet and the future of the human species. In the course we will examine questions concerning the built and natural environment, the design of objects and interiors, the psychology behind sustainable practices, and attitudes and opinions regarding green energy.